207.3 NORTH EAST PARTNERSHIP

- [a] Establishment of Statutory Joint Committee and
- [b] Council contribution
- [c] Programme Update

The following motion is being presented to the eight NEP member councils seeking agreement to:

[a] Establishment of Joint Committee

Establish a Statutory Joint Committee underpinned by Body Corporate legislation and consolidated by a legally binding Partnership Agreement in order that the NEP can perform its new role under INTERREG IVA.

1. This is as per the recommendation obtained from KPMG Management Consultants and L'Estrange and Brett Solicitors

[b] Council Contribution

Collectively contribute up to £100,000 match funding over a five-year financial period April 2009 to March 2014 toward the project management and development role that the NEP will play. Seek initial NEP member council commitment of £2,500 each per year for two-year period 2009/10 and 2010/11 to be reviewed thereafter as part of the new RPA arrangements. This represents a 50% decrease from the annual £5,000 NEP council match funding sought for the previous financial year.

Approval of these requests will allow the North East Partnership to fully undertake the management function of circa £10m INTERREG IVA funding for approved projects over the period 2009-2013. The successful implementation of these projects will have a positive impact across the North East and also the relevant project partners regions in Western Scotland and the Border Counties of Ireland.

IT WAS RECOMMENDED that Council agree to the establishment of Joint Committee as set out above and commit to a contribution of £2,500 per annum to North East Partnership in 2009/10 and 2010/11.

In response to Councillor Robinson, the Head of Corporate and Development Services confirmed provision has been made within the budget.

It was proposed by Councillor Robinson, seconded by Alderman Connolly, and AGREED:

Appendix A: Draft Response to Social Economy Enterprise Strategy 2009-2011

Appendix A

Ballymoney Borough Council's Development Services welcomes the opportunity to comment on this draft strategy, which will take the Social Economy (SE) sector through this period of transition under the Review of Public Administration (RPA).

The Strategy provides a comprehensive framework for the development of the SE sector. It recognises that the original objectives are still current and require more action, and the number of actions developed to meet these objectives are pertinent.

However, there are a number of other considerations that do not appear to have been sufficiently addressed; these are as follows:

1. Representation

The Social Economy Network is supposed to be representative of the sector and, admittedly, it could be argued that the majority of the organisations on its board are social enterprises. However, most of the board (as listed in Annex A) seems to consist of Belfast biased or Social Economy support organisations rather than individual social entrepreneurial businesses.

There is no representation of social enterprises that are rural and/or west of the River Bann, yet reference is made to the substantial membership from rural entrepreneurs (page 27). This would strengthen the rationale for the need for rural areas to be represented on the board of Social Economy Network (SEN). It could be argued that the umbrella organisations cover these areas, but this is rather unsatisfactory.

Additionally, the weighting towards support or umbrella organisations leads to a concern that any need identified or support provided would be biased in relation to what the support organisations could offer. It appears that there is little direct input at board/strategic level from the social economy enterprises that SEN is supposed to represent.

To address this matter, there should be equal representation from individual social enterprises (that do not provide support to the sector itself) taken from across the province to ensure that the SEN board is truly representative.

2. The Current RPA Transition Period

Although it refers to the local government reform programme (RPA) on page 14, the Strategy makes a limited attempt to take advantage of the opportunity to ensure the effect of the transition in 2011 on the SE sector is minimised.

The Social Entrepreneurship Programme will transfer to the new district councils, which will come into effect in May 2011, only 17 months from the date that the consultation for this strategy closes. Yet, within the 61 action points contained within the 6 actions, specific reference to local authorities only features twice.

This perceived exclusion of the future deliverers of the Social Entrepreneurship Programme (SEP) from the current strategy could be addressed by incorporating the elements listed below into the strategy. This would ensure a smoother transition of the SEP from Invest NI to the local authorities, as relationships would have already been established with the key stakeholders in this sector prior to the transition.

- Enable input to policy by local authorities through a relevant forum (Action 1.1, DSD: 2nd point). This could be through the inclusion of a local authority representative on the Social Economy Policy Group.
- Include local authorities as recipients for any policy, developmental or monitoring information. (Action 1.1 - DSD: 3rd point; Action 1.2 - Invest NI: 1st point, etc.).
- Include local authorities in the development of any ongoing or new initiatives to be incorporated into the SEP, i.e. 'in conjunction with local authorities' (Action 2.1 – Invest NI)
- Include for local authorities awareness-raising, best practice, lessons learned from the current SEP programme deliverer's perspective, i.e. Invest NI, as well as from the sector's perspective.

It is vital that this is included in the strategy to ensure that these actions for the inclusion of local authorities are also incorporated into the evaluation of the strategy in 2010/2011.

3. 'Branding' the Social Economy Sector

The social economy sector has a unique element that sets it apart from the rest of the business sector. By including the promotion of this sector within the Invest NI 'Go For It' promotional campaign (Action 1.1 – Invest NI), the opportunity to highlight this competitive advantage could be lost.

Devising a unique but simple brand for the sector, such as adding 'A Social Economy Enterprise' (logo optional) to all of the sector's advertising campaigns, whether collective or individual, would heighten the profile of the sector alongside the profile of the individual organisation in their area. Highlighting that these enterprises make a unique contribution to society would be particularly beneficial at a time when the general population's awareness of social issues is heightened.

4. Flexible Learning

In relation to Action 2.2 'Building the business skills of SEEs, it is believed that the term flexible should be included in the strategy to ensure that this is incorporated into any new, innovative or existing programmes.

Most businesses and their managers, especially during the establishment phase, have many demands on their time and resources. Courses and qualifications should therefore be accessible in terms of location and financing and flexible in approaches to learning.

Furthermore, to ensure that rural areas are not neglected in the provision to develop professionally as a social entrepreneur, there should be an element of targeted outreach included in the strategy. At the moment, the arrangements for developing professionally as a social entrepreneur appear to be sited solely within urban areas, i.e. through the School for Social Entrepreneurs in Ireland, which is based in Belfast (and whose online promotions relate solely to Belfast social entrepreneurs), or the Universities, which are all based in urban areas.

Admittedly, there is reference to assistance through the Rural Development Programme but why should rural enterprises have to rely on specialist support and be debarred from mainstream provision merely because of location. In this day of modern technology, more innovative methods of applying distance learning to a collective must be considered.
